

SCHLEY COURT OPENED PROMPTLY AT ONE O'CLOCK THIS AFTERNOON.

Counsel Immediately Challenged Admiral Howison.

In Reality Schley, Sampson and Whole Navy Department Are on Trial.

Result Hoped to Award Credit for Santiago Victory and End Controversy.

Dignity and Splendor Marked Opening--Full Dress Worn Only After Officers Reach Place of Holding Sessions--Preliminaries Before Examination of Witnesses.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Promptly at the stroke of one this afternoon the Schley court of inquiry opened at the navy yard in this city. Admirals Dewey and Howison came first at 12:25 and at 12:45 this afternoon Admiral Schley arrived. The court, at the close of the hearings will state its opinion of Admiral Schley's conduct and that will be the end of the matter so far as the navy department is concerned. Even if the court should declare Schley guilty of having violated regulations, there could be no court martial. In such cases the statute of limitation takes effect in two years. More than two years from the date of the last alleged offense had elapsed before Admiral Schley, asked for the court of inquiry.

Everything is in readiness for the inquiry and it will proceed slowly. So many preliminaries are to be settled that the taking of testimony may be delayed several days. That is certain to be the case if Howison should be declared ineligible as a member of the court. At 1:30 this afternoon Admiral Schley's counsel challenged Admiral Howison.

Through counsel, Admiral Schley said that he was obliged to object to Admiral Howison as a member of the court because he had made remarks disparaging to him (Schley), and in praise of Admiral Sampson. Howison at 2:25 this afternoon retired to make a written reply to the charge of Admiral Schley.

Commander Terry, of the navy yard, has included in the preparations the placing of two cannons on the shore of the Potomac for saluting purposes. Admiral Dewey is entitled to a salute of 17 guns every time he enters the navy yard but he has ordered that powder shall not be burned for him. He and the Rear Admirals will wear civilian dress in going and coming and will don their uniforms in a dressing room in the court building.

Navy Yard, Washington, Sept. 12.—Dignity and splendor marked the opening of the Schley court of inquiry this afternoon. While on the face of the record it is simply a court of inquiry to consider Admiral Schley's conduct in the Santiago campaign, in reality Admiral Schley, Admiral Sampson and the whole navy department are all on trial. The great hope of all those involved is that Court may succeed in settling once for all the controversy that has raged for three years, that it may, in fact clearly award the credit for the victory and finally write the Santiago chapter of American history in unmistakable and unalterable terms.

Official etiquette was observed to the minutest detail, full dress uniforms with all their plumes and gold braid brilliant to the scene and the great questions involved clothed every phase of the proceedings with interest. Dramatic force is added from the fact that the inquiry seems certain to rank as the most celebrated in American military history. The event upon which it is based is of world-wide interest and in the distinguished character of the officers involved the case is without a parallel. The department has said Admiral Schley was guilty of "reprehensible conduct." If that should be proved, according to those who are watching the case, it would be hard on Schley. If it should be proved that criticism was without warrant the result would be unpleasant to Admiral Sampson and to the department.

Especially interest centers in the hero of Manila bay by the fact that the difficulties that beset him will bring to light the qualities that won him renown in the Orient after the sinking of Monteflo's fleet. His tact and diplomacy will be severely tried.

Rear Admiral Benham, retired, the second member of the court is a New Yorker, 69 years of age. He began active service more than half a century ago, when he assisted in running down pirates on the coast of China.

Rear Admiral Howison, the third member of the court is 64 years old and was a member of Admiral Dewey's class at Annapolis. He served creditably in the civil war, principally on blockade duty but participated in the battle of Mobile bay as commander of the Blenheim.

Judge Advocate General Lemly is the chief law officer of the court. He is assisted by Edwin P. Hanna. It is the duty of the Judge Advocate to present the evidence to the court, not as a prosecutor, but with a view to disclosing all the facts.

Schley's attorneys will have privilege of cross examination. Judge Jeremiah Wilson of this city, is on Schley's side. He has been identified with many famous cases, among which was that of Madeline Pollard against Breckenridge.

Attorney General Raynor of Maryland, has laid aside all duties to give his attention to the case.

Captain James Parker, also of Schley's counsel, formerly of Newark, Ohio, is a well known New York lawyer. He was formerly a naval officer, and his technical knowledge will be of decided value to the Schley case.

Sampson is represented by Attorney Stayton of New York, who is permitted to occupy a seat near the judge's table, but who will not be given the privilege of cross examination until evidence involving his client may have been adduced.

Washington, Sept. 12.—The Schley court of inquiry convened here today, all members being present, and a large number of witnesses on hand. Formalities marked the opening and are expected to consume the entire day, but there was no disposition on the part of the members to magnify the court's importance by useless ceremony. Three admirals are participating, and it is gathered from the attitude of the government officials that they have no present intention of calling Admiral Sampson.

Precisely at 1 p. m. the members of the court were seated, Admiral Dewey at the center of the table, placed crosswise of the courtroom, with Admiral Benham on his right and Rear Admiral Howison on his left. The witnesses stood at the left end of the table next the official stenographer, and the judge advocate, Captain Lemly, with Solicitor E. P. Hanna, his associate in the case, occupied the other end of the table. A place was reserved for Mr. Stayton, who is to represent naval officers not officially named as yet. The judge advocate first addressed the court and read the precept under which it is convened. Next came the most interesting part of the day's proceedings, namely, the challenging by Admiral Schley's counsel of the competency of Rear Admiral Howison as a member of the court. They reiterated the charge that Admiral Howison had expressed an opinion adverse to Admiral Schley. The expectation is that an hour or two will be consumed in argument by counsel directed to the two members of the court whose competency is not questioned. Admirals Dewey and Benham then will determine whether or not the statements presented are sufficient to make manifest the incompetency of Rear Admiral Howison. There will be no appeal from their decision on this point.

The court of inquiry for a long time in progress at the Brooklyn navy yard to investigate trouble in the marine corps, has come to a sensational termination. Major C. H. Lauchheimer and Colonel F. L. Denny charged Colonel Robert L. Meade with drunkenness on duty, while an inspection was in progress at the Brooklyn navy yard. Colonel Meade replied by charging Major Lauchheimer with making a false report and Colonel Denny with reporting against him (Meade) in order to cover up irregularities with contractors on Denny's part. The court of inquiry acquitted Major Lauchheimer and Colonel Denny of the charges against them. It sustained the charge against Colonel Meade, and in addition charged him with violation of the naval regulations in replying with a countercharge when asked for a report, and also of false swearing on the witness stand. The court recommended that the colonel be tried by court-martial upon these charges.

Fashion journals announce that it will be a "velvet winter."

This was greeted with a storm of applause on one hand and protests on the other.

Plot to Assassinate Duke of York.

New York, Sept. 12.—The World today says a report has come from Montreal that several anarchists had arrived there for the purpose of assassinating the Duke of York who comes to Montreal. The report further states that a letter concerning a plot was furnished the mayor of Montreal by an Italian who says he is tired of having the name of his country trailed in the mud by his anarchistic countrymen. The name of the informant so far as can be deciphered is Giovanni Cabaine.

BUFFALO POLICE WANT EMMA

Conspiracy Charges Are to be Filed--The Woman Held Without Bail at Chicago Pending Investigation--Preliminary Steps at Buffalo.

Buffalo, Sept. 12.—The police have taken the preliminary steps necessary to secure the extradition of Emma Goldman, the anarchist leader under arrest at Chicago, or alleged complicity in the plot to kill President McKinley, and it is understood that application for her removal to this state will go forward as the formalities can be completed with. Other than signifying their general intent, the police keep silent as to the course that they plan to follow and the exact nature of the charges to be made against the Goldman woman is not yet been disclosed.

Superintendent of Police Bull takes the ground that an indictment is not necessary to secure the Chicago prisoner, and, although there is a grand jury in session here now, it may not be asked to indict the woman. It is generally believed that Emma Goldman is to be tried under the laws of this state for conspiracy, but it is admitted that much depends upon the nature of the showing that can be made against her in court. Doubt is expressed that the police have so far been able to secure any satisfactory evidence connecting her with the crime committed by Czolgosz, and the ability of the police to secure a conviction upon the information they now

EMMA HELD WITHOUT BAIL.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—Magistrate Prindle decided that Emma Goldman, the anarchist, before being arrested, should be held without bail pending the decision of similar cases in the upper court. The action of Judge Prindle in holding her without bail comes only to Friday. At that time the question will be reconsidered and the magistrate will decide whether she shall be held without bail or released on her own bonds until the preliminary hearing of the charges against her, which is set for Sept. 19.

Miss Goldman appeared for the preliminary hearing before the magistrate. She had secured counsel, but in a determined voice declared that she was ready to act as her own attorney. The assistant city prosecutor, however, obtained a continuance of the hearing until Sept. 18, the date set for the hearing of the other anarchists in custody here. Mr. Owens, the prosecutor, stated that the result of an investigation at Buffalo was being awaited.

President Partook of Solid Food For Breakfast.

THEN ASKED FOR CIGAR AND SHAVE.

Buffalo, Sept. 12.—At 1:20 this afternoon Representative Grosvenor after a call at the Milburn house, states that the President suffered no inconvenience from his breakfast of solid food, indicating that his bodily machinery is working all right and that he is rapidly getting well.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 12.—At 10:40 Dr. McBurney said: "The improvement in the President's condition since last night is the most wonderful I have ever observed. We found this morning that his stomach was healed, the interior wound, so that he can stand a big amount of nourishment. We will see that he gets it."

"I should like a mild cigar," he said the bulletins announcing the tragic affair. At the time Garfield was shot Fulton was day operator at the Western Union office in this city and received the bulletins in regard to that. When President McKinley was shot Fulton received the bulletins at the Postal Telegraph in this city.

Dayton, O., Sept. 12.—Six members of the Soldiers' Home, who expressed personal gratification over the shooting of President McKinley, will in all probability be expelled from that institution. ### EXCELLENT SURGERY.

When the Doctor left the Milburn house at 10:35 this morning he was asked regarding the President's condition and said: "The President is doing very well. Indeed he could not be expected to be doing better. He ate a good breakfast of solid food and I am sure is on the road to recovery."

SAW BOTH SHOTS FIRED.

Captain Cook was in command of the Brooklyn, Rear Admiral Schley's flagship, during the sea fight off Santiago. He is probably the most important witness to come before the board of inquiry.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S BAD TASTE.

Mr. Roosevelt's conspicuity at Buffalo has been in bad taste. He is not a member of the administration and there was no occasion for his appearance in that city.

The position of the vice president in all cases when the president is in danger of death is one of great delicacy and the incumbent of that office should conduct himself with the utmost circumspection. Above all, he should avoid public appearance and public speech.

In both of these matters Mr. Roosevelt has erred very decidedly. He has been most prominent at the house where the afflicted President lies. He has been in public places at all hours of the day and night, and he has been more loquacious than any other public official in the presence of newspaper representatives and others.

Except as the presiding officer of the United States senate, the vice president is a nonentity in the government of the United States until, by the death of the President, he becomes the chief magistrate. Heretofore the gentlemen who have held this office have kept themselves in a modest and dignified retirement.

Mr. Roosevelt's impressionable and impulsive nature has manifested itself very prominently during the trying days that have passed since the President received his wound. It is announced that he has left Buffalo. Perhaps he has accepted advice from some discreet friends. But it is to be hoped that he will as speedily as possible take himself to his home and there escape the publicity which neither he nor his friends in their reasonable moments can regard with anything but disfavor.

The umbrella and parasol were used by the Eastern nations many years before the Christian era. The oldest chinaware shows pictures of ladies and mandarins shaded by parasols of patterns similar to those now in use.

THE NATIONAL GUARD MUST RE-MAIN STATE TROOPS.

It is reported that Secretary Root will urge legislation at the coming session of congress to federalize the national guard and put the state militia under control of the war department. That might be one way of securing a great standing army, but the states will probably regard it with suspicion. Once accomplished, a way would promptly be found to get rid of the militia officers and put regulars in command of the state troops. The state troops are all right the way they are. They don't need federalizing. If the country is in danger they will go to the front, obey orders and do their share of the fighting; and that's all that is necessary. The volunteer citizen soldier has never been found wanting and you can never make him fraternize the year around in times of peace with your hired soldier.

These the Salient Features.

(Cincinnati Enquirer.)
The Schley court of inquiry, however profound and searching it may be, cannot remove the fact that Admiral Schley was an exceedingly active person at the battle of Santiago, and cannot make it possible that Admiral Sampson was within shooting distance. In the minds of the people, who are so busy that they are anxious to get at facts and conclusions directly and speedily, these are the salient points. Collateral details are overshadowed by the main event.

STEEL STRIKE

Shaffer Denies Reports of Settlement.

Combine Active—Shaffer Says Battle Will Go On.

Pittsburg, Sept. 12.—President Shaffer continues to deny rumors of a settlement of the strike, saying that the battle of the steel workers would go on until they won. He denied that the executive board had instructed him to settle the strike on any terms, and said that he would not go to New York or make any further peace move for the present. While the president of the Amalgamated Association was standing in this position, the officials of the United States Steel corporation were putting forth active efforts to start their plant. This was particularly the case on the South Side. During the day the company held the strikers' pickets back by a show of police and got a lot of provisions, cooking utensils and cots for the men to sleep on into the Monongahela plant of the American Tin Plate company. At the Star mills the company succeeded in landing 60 skilled workmen. Attempts at resumption will be made. Evictions have begun of strikers occupying companies' houses.

Village Burned.

Carrolltown, O., Sept. 12.—The village of Mechanicstown, nine miles east of this city, was visited by a conflagration. The fire started in the store of Atwood McLean, from an unknown cause. Three buildings, with the following stores, were entirely destroyed: Atwood McLean, dry goods; V. Alexander Boyd, hardware, and Albert Clark, general merchandise. Loss $25,000, with no insurance except on the McLean stock.

Will Not Fuse.

Yankton, S. D., Sept. 12.—The South Dakota Populist leaders, at a conference here, adopted a long statement of principles, expressing strong opposition to all fusion with the Democratic party and a determination to continue with their economic movement. It was the unanimous sense of the conference that a referendum vote be taken for nominations for a full state ticket for 1902.

Cambridge Strikers Restrained.

Cincinnati, Sept. 12.—Judge Charles D. Clark of the United States district court at Chattanooga granted an injunction asked for by the American Tin Plate company, restraining 330 strikers at Cambridge, O., from interfering with nonunion men, who are charged with congregating about all passenger trains "to terrorize men arriving to take the place of strikers."

United States Marshal Fagin and deputies left Cincinnati to serve the writs. The case will be heard in Cincinnati Sept. 20.

Big Coal Deal.

Roanoke, Va., Sept. 12.—West Virginia is on the eve of a big coal deal. Some time ago the initial move was made by the purchase of all the coal operations on the Kanawha river. It is said J. P. Morgan was behind it and that the drafts for the purchase money bore his signature. Hardly had that deal been consummated before it was announced that the Flat Top field has been purchased by the same or allied interests for $13,000,000. All the New River territory is ago.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Baldwin Heard From.
Word comes from Christiania that the steamer Fridtjof, arriving at Hammerfest, reported that she successfully landed the Baldwin-Zieglar arctic expedition at Camp Zieglar, in latitude 80.24 north and longitude 55.52 east, in Algen Island. Mr. Baldwin intended to start northward on Aug. 24 by what is called the interior route across Makham sound. This is probably the best word that will be heard from Baldwin for two years.

The Baldwin-Zieglar expedition is probably the best equipped American arctic expedition that has gone out in years. Baldwin has two ships, the larger of which, a staunch whaler, is called the American. The party includes a number of distinguished scientists. The expedition is thoroughly American in every respect.

Mr. Dawes' Successor.
William Barrett Ridgley of Illinois is to succeed Charles G. Dawes of the same state as comptroller of the currency.

It has not yet been officially announced that this appointment is to be made, but the president is known to have practically decided upon it.

Mr. Ridgley is about 42 years of age and is a son-in-law of Senator Cullom of Illinois. His father was a banker and was engaged in manufacturing.

Mr. Ridgley since early manhood has been connected with financial enterprises. He is at present secretary and treasurer of the Republic Iron company of Chicago, one of the mills outside of the steel trust. He has taken an interest in politics as a supporter of his father-in-law. He is endorsed for the comptrollership by Senator Mason as well as Senator Cullom. Mr. Dawes also exerted his influence in obtaining the appointment.

Young Clews Wields the Baton.
Henry Clews, Jr., has made his debut at Newport as a musical conductor. We all knew, says Cholly Knickerbocker, that he had musical abilities of no mean order, but we none of us dreamed that he aspired to the laurels of Walter Damrosch. At a classical concert given recently at one of the cottages he assumed the direction of the orchestra and wielded the baton throughout the evening with the mastery and brio of a Thomas, to the amazement and admiration of his numerous acquaintances and friends, who had been altogether ignorant of his talents in that direction.

New York's Police Investigation.

The investigation of New York's police department, which has brought out a whole chapter of startling incidents, is attracting the attention of the entire country. William S. Devery, deputy commissioner of police, is a central figure in the affair. Devery was chief of police up to about eight months ago, when the law governing the force and its administration was changed, a one man commission being substituted for the commission of four that has hitherto existed. Michael C. Murphy is now the commissioner of police, but William S. Devery, the deputy commissioner, is practically in charge of the details of the department. Mr. Murphy, like Mr. Devery, is deeply interested in the present investigation.

The Queen's Present.

Queen Alexandra has ordered a special votive to be made for presentation to the dowager empress of Russia. The car is to be eight horsepower and is to be of the spider type, finished and furnished in the most luxurious manner that money can command.

The Kaiser Likes Statuary.

The German emperor's chief passion seems to be statuary. "There are 34 sculptors in Berlin," he remarked to a friend the other day, and he knows them all personally, visits their studios and likes to be photographed there among the clay sketches.

DEPUTY COMMISSIONER DEVERY.

"This Different in England."

"I suppose it's all right for Americans who visit Europe to talk with an English accent when they come home," reflected Uncle Allen Sparks, "but you never hear of any Englishmen talking through their noses and saying 'I guess' after they have spent a season in the United States and gone back home."—Chicago Tribune.

Hope.

"Say, pop, I've got to write a composition on 'Hope.' What is 'Hope,' anyway?"

"Hope, my boy, is the joyous expectation of being able to dodge our just deserts."—Life.

Hyde park, the Green park and St. James' park cost London between them $2,976 a year to keep up.

More than four-fifths of the population of Mexico are of mixed or Indian blood.

DRIVEN TO MADNESS.

TIMES WHEN AN EXCESS OF JOY IS LINKED WITH INSANITY.

Some of the Saddest Cases of Lunacy Are Those Where the Mind Is Unable to Stand the Shock of Sudden Good Tidings.

It is no exaggeration to assert, said an asylum doctor of long and varied experience, that there are scores of men and women in our asylums who have literally been sent there through excess of joy. Many of these cases which are, in my opinion, the saddest of all have come under my own observation.

I remember in the very first asylum with which I was connected one of the patients was a strikingly handsome and very well educated man, who was as sane as you or I except on one point. He was really a man of considerable wealth, but his delusion was that he was a pauper, and he would tell the most pitiful tales of his destitution, begging, with tears in his eyes, for a few coppers with which to buy bread.

According to the story told me, he was the only son of a wealthy merchant. In his youth he had fallen among evil companions and had led such a dissolute life that his father, not only threatened to disinherit him, but forbade him ever to enter his house again. After that he seems to have sunk into the lowest depths of poverty until he was glad to earn a few coppers by selling papers or matches in the streets.

It was at this last and lowest stage that news came to him that his father had died intestate and that he was heir to all his vast fortune. The sudden news completely turned the man's brain and brought on such a condition of excitement that he had to be sent to an asylum, and when he calmed down again he had lost all recollection of his good fortune, and nothing could shake his delusion that he is on the verge of starvation.

Another patient in the same asylum was a young man in his lucid moments a most intelligent fellow, whose "brain was turned," as the saying is, on learning that he had passed an examination. He had sat for the matriculation examination at the University of London, on passing which he had set his heart and had asked a friend in London to wire the result as soon as the names were screened at Burlington House.

About three weeks later came a fatal telegram, "Failed—sorry," which sent the young man into the lowest depths of despair, for he was too old to sit again. Not many hours later, however, came another telegram, "Passed honors—very sorry crash so great did not see name this morning." The revelation of feeling was so great that the student's reason gave way, and he became so violent in his excitement that he had to be confined. Fortunately he was not with us long and is now, I am glad to know, doing very well as a solicitor.

Disappointed love sends many people to asylums, but it is very seldom that success in wooing drives a man mad. It had this strange effect, however, on one of my late patients. "The girl he loved had gone out to India to help her brother before he had proposed to her, but an offer followed by mail very quickly after her.

Weeks and months passed, and no answer came to the impatient lover until, after waiting two years in despair, he became engaged to a girl who had nothing but her money bags to recommend her and for whom he had not a particle of love. Scarcely, however, was his fate sealed than he received the long delayed letter from India, accepting his offer and explaining that the girl's brother had received and mislaid the letter, which had only just been found and had come into her hands.

Within an hour of the receipt of this letter the man was a raving maniac, and although his condition is improved I doubt whether he will ever recover his reason.

In another remarkable case it was the joy at seeing her husband again that robbed a lady patient of her reason. Her husband was the captain of a merchant ship which was reported to have gone down with all hands. The widow had deeply mourned her husband for nearly a year, when one day on returning from a walk she found him sitting in the drawing room as hale and robust as ever.

With a shriek she fell unconscious on the floor, and when she recovered her reason was gone. It seems that her husband, after floating for some time, had been picked up by a passing "tramp" and had been landed on the west coast of Africa, from which he had returned home by the first available vessel.—London Tit-Bits.

"This Different in England."

"I suppose it's all right for Americans who visit Europe to talk with an English accent when they come home," reflected Uncle Allen Sparks, "but you never hear of any Englishmen talking through their noses and saying 'I guess' after they have spent a season in the United States and gone back home."—Chicago Tribune.

Hope.

"Say, pop, I've got to write a composition on 'Hope.' What is 'Hope,' anyway?"

"Hope, my boy, is the joyous expectation of being able to dodge our just deserts."—Life.

RAILROADS.

B. & O. S. W. Strike.

Washington, Ind., Sept. 12.—One hundred and fifty Italian and Irish laborers have been imported by the B. & O. S. W. railway company from St. Louis to take the places of strikers in the shops. Immediately upon their arrival they were assigned to work and are now employed. Ten of the imported men refused to work after reaching here, claiming that the situation had been misrepresented to them at St. Louis. The men who went to work are quartered in some old coaches and their food supply is brought from Vincennes. Yesterday the B. & O. S. W. strikers were joined by 60 machinists. The strikers now number 500 and trouble is feared if the non-union men venture out of the shop grounds. All trains stop at the city station, going by the relay.

Provisions for the employees come from Vincennes as the local merchants will not sell them to the company.

B. & O. Inspection Party.

A B. & O. railroad inspection party consisting of Assistant General Manager Hale, Assistant General Superintendent Campbell, Superintendent English of the Trans-Ohio division, Trainmaster Peck, Division Engineer Vadakin, Superintendent of Buildings Shultz, and several other officials, are making a trip over the entire line of the B. & O. railroad, inspecting the buildings on the different divisions. ## CLEVER PLOT

CONCOCTED BY INDIANA GIRL, BUT IT FAILED.

She Wanted $4000 as She Was About to Wed—Said She Had Been Abducted.

Kokomo, Ind., Sept. 12.—A startling confession was made by Miss Rebekah O'Haire, who claimed to have been abducted by Hughes, both at her home in Bushton, Ill., last June, and here last Friday from the home of her grandfather. She was found Sunday covered with blood and told a harrowing tale of torture and cruelty. On the day of the last disappearance her father, Elsberry O'Haire, a wealthy resident of Bushton, received a letter stating that his daughter had been abducted and demanding $4000 ransom. The father, instead of forwarding the money, sent a detective here. Miss O'Haire, confronted by the detective, Prosecutor Williams and Captain of Police Donahue, confessed that she was both times her own abductor and that the object was to get the $4000 from her father. She said she intended to be married in a few days and needed the money. She used chicken blood in smearing her face, hands and clothing.

RUSHING

WORK ON THE BUCKEYE LAKE STREET RAILROAD.

More Men Are Wanted—Trolley Line Strung to Newark—Progress Made Thus Far.

The Buckeye Lake road commenced the construction of the bridge to the gravel pits on the Zartman place, just west of Newark, this morning.

The trolley wire from Hebron to a point near Reynoldsburg has been strung, and the track laid nearly west from Hebron to Luray, and the road-bed graded from Columbus to Reynoldsburg.

There has been but little work done between Reynoldsburg and Kyrkersville, but a bridge has been constructed at the former place.

The temporary power house at Hebron is to be used until the permanent one is built in the spring.

Rails have been laid between Hebron and Buckeye Lake with the exception of a stream over which a bridge is being built.

The Buckeye Lake railroad company which has an option on the Swick place, now operated by Mr. Stimmel, is preparing to buy the place and it is said the company will acquire control of the property along the bank of the lake as far as Rosebroughs and may take in the Rosebrough property.

Without doubt a good hotel and park will be constructed at the terminus of the road at the Swick place.

The company is advertising in today's Advocate for 100 more men to rush the road to completion.

A. J. MAURER

Mr. W. F. Seymour has received a letter from his friend A. J. Maurer, now a member of Troop F, 13th U. S. Cavalry, dated Fort Keogh, Montana. He says that while traveling from Ft. Meade, they camped one night on the ground where General Custer and his command were massacred. The tree on which four white men were hanged by General Custer, before the battle, for aiding the Indians, is still standing and is called "Hangman's Tree." Mr. Maurer is in the best of health, and sends his regards to his many Newark friends.

DICK'S REPLY

Chairman Daugherty Was Surprised to receive an Answer Consisting of Political Dissertation.

Lancaster, O., Sept. 12.—A reporter called on Chairman Daugherty yesterday and inquired whether he intended to reply to the letter of Chairman Dick declining the proposal of the Democratic Committee to omit political meetings and political addresses during the campaign. Chairman Daugherty said:

"I shall not reply to the letter of Mr. Dick. Of course, I do not question his right to decline our proposal for any reason which might commend itself to his judgment. That privilege we must, and do cheerfully concede to him. However, I was much surprised to receive an answer consisting so largely of political dissertation on campaign issues.

"The suggestion that the Democratic Committee might, if it so desired, abandon its principles was quite gratuitous, and marred the otherwise courteous tone of his letter. We were not seeking Republican advice along that line. But I suppose mercenary politics measures the conduct of men by its own questionable standard even in the presence of the great calamity which has befallen the nation.

"It will occur to thinking men that Mr. Dick was equally unfortunate in his reference to the protective policy which it was supposed the President stood for. If he had read the last public utterance delivered by the President at Buffalo before his attempted assassination he could easily have discerned a change of mind on the part of the President himself on that subject. Although veiled under the term 'reciprocity' it is nevertheless a complete abandonment of the protective system. For reciprocity, while not free trade by operation of law, is free trade accomplished by contract stipulations between nations."

As late as 1770 the journey from Liverpool to London was dangerous on account of the bad condition of the roads.

HINTS FOR FARMERS

The Fly Plague.
At the Wisconsin station they divided 14 cows into two lots as nearly equal in condition as they could make them, and on half were sent to pasture according to the usual custom of farmers, though in a small field with plenty of shade during the day, says American Cultivator. The others were kept during the day in a comfortable stable with screen doors and windows, but allowed to feed in the pasture during night and the early morning. It was found that these produced 20 per cent more butter than those in the pasture during the day, as the latter were kept moving all of the time by the flies. On an Iowa dairy farm they obtained more milk from cows kept in a dark stable without screens during the day and let out to graze at night than they did from those in pasture all day and in stable at night. Similar results have been obtained by the spraying of cattle with something to repel the flies, but most of these repellents have an odor that fills the air in the stable and may injure the milk or butter if not very carefully used. We never found anything better than a sponge or damp cloth just made moist with kerosene and wiped lightly over the top of the head, along the back and over the legs, using it every morning just after milking. The odor evaporates before the next milking if not used too freely.

Sunlight in Stables.
A recent experiment demonstrated the value of sunlight in the stables. Twenty-four healthy cows known or believed to be free from tuberculosis were divided and one-half put in a dark stable, the others in a stable into which the sun shone freely, says American Cultivator. Then a number of tuberculous cows were procured and kept at intervals first with one lot and then with the other, interchanging at stated periods. At the end of a year the 12 in the dark stable were tuberculous and only four in the other stable. Plenty of sunlight and pure air in the stables will do more alone to exterminate tuberculosis than all the tuberculin tests and consequent slaughter of suspected animals can do without these aids.

Sheep Fertilize the Land.
Fertile farms and well kept fields have always been associated with sheep, says an Iowa farmer in Prairie Farmer. Sheep themselves are regarded as good scavengers and, besides, the best sort of animals to keep up the fertility of the fields, and I have never known of a farmer who kept sheep to become poorer by so doing. Neither have I known any field which was pastured by sheep to run down; but, on the contrary, such fields will annually increase in value and fertility. Sheep are close croppers and will eat grass, weeds and the foliage of trees and will distribute such portions of what they consume as is not needed for nourishment over the body of the land.

Bots in Horses.
No medicine that can be given the horse will kill the bots, says The Horseman. Anything that can get through their skins will first destroy the stomach of the horse. So nothing can be done to get rid of bots, and no fear need be entertained that they are going to do any great damage to the horse. Nature does not plan to destroy in such tremendous degree as would ensue if the bots could eat the lining of the horse's stomach. They may interfere somewhat with digestion if present in enormous numbers, but in that way only, and the writer can say with all truth that he never knew any serious case of equine illness due solely to bots.

Packing Apples For Storage.
Apples that are to be put in cold storage should be carefully picked and assorted as soon as they are well matured, then packed snugly in barrels, headed up to almost an airtight condition and stored at once. If very choice specimens, it will usually pay to wrap each apple in a double wrapper first of tissue paper and then of heavier paper, but when this is not done line the barrel sides and ends with paper. This may reduce the decay to a few apples in a barrel instead of 10 per cent or more. Then the grower can take his choice of repacking, for there will usually be a shrinkage besides the loss of decay, or selling them as they are.

Grain Fed Lambs.
The more rapid increase in growth of lambs fed grain as soon as they can be induced to eat it stimulates the constitutional vigor and ability of the animals not only to eat more food and make a correspondingly greater growth in a shorter time until final maturity, says American Sheep Breeder, but it stimulates the sexual functions so that earlier breeding is encouraged and made safely possible for both the young ewe and its lamb. But still more, this feeding and the resulting constitutional vigor tend to encourage the birth of twins.

Fighting the Hessian Fly.
The Hessian fly that has developed in the spring from the maggot that lived all winter in the roots of the wheat plant deposited its eggs on the blades of the wheat, and these during the early summer reach the maggot stage and may be found in the first joint of the stalk, says Colman's Rural Worker. Many of these have not developed into the fly when the grain is harvested and may therefore be destroyed by burning the stubble.

Nonproducing Fruit Trees.
Vigorous trees which fail to produce fruit may be grafted with fruit buds from other trees during August and September. The following season fruit will be produced. This is the result of tests made in Germany.

John Henry's Theory

BY C. E. CORBET.

"Little girl," said John Henry to his wife one evening, "I have some strong notions about business principles being applicable to every occupation in life. You know I have a stated income, and when I was a bachelor I knew to a penny where that money went. Very convenient it was, too, for I was sure what to count on when any extra expense came up. Now, I don't want to restrict you one bit, but it's nice to be exact and business-like, and if we each kept a little account book at the end of a year we'd know exactly how much we'd spent and where we'd got to. Tomorrow night I'll bring home two nice little books, and we'll account for every penny in them and compare at the end of each month."

The next evening, true to his word, John Henry drew from his pocket two pretty little leather bound books, a blue one for Mrs. John and a red one for himself. She was apparently reconciled to the idea and was really enthusiastic over his purchase.

For several months all went very smooth apparently, but the hours of tears and pouts and sobs and rubbings out and widdings in again and adding and subtracting which Mrs. John spent in trying to make the "received" and "paid" columns balance were not to be lost sight of in the reckoning. John Henry knew nothing of it, and any troubles he may have had were expressed in an entirely different manner and audible only to the unresponsive ears of the office boy.

On the first evening of each month Mr. and Mrs. John Henry, in perfect mutual trust and confidence, went over together item by item the accounts in the little books and discussed the variations in the price of beefsteak and the advisability of intrusting another vendor of meats with the care of the family larder. Also the cost of keeping John Henry's cigar box replenished. But Mrs. John always ended by declaring she would go without a spring bonnet rather than have him smoke cheaper tobacco.

"It is so injurious, anyway, that one must have the best if one smokes at all," she said.

One beautiful autumn day an old school friend of Mrs. John's came to town and immediately hunted up that lady. Now, Mrs. John had intended to lunch that day on a sup and a bite, for the grocer had not come, and the cupboard very nearly resembled the proverbial one of Mother Goose fame. So when the friend made her appearance perilously near the noon hour Mrs. John was in a flutter. This woman was one for whom John Henry entertained a particular antipathy and also one upon whom Mrs. John especially desired to make a good impression. She examined her purse. Yes, there was plenty in it. She would take her friend down town to lunch at a fashionable cafe. As they were drinking their after dinner coffee the friend mentioned a popular play which she particularly desired to see. Had Mrs. John seen it? No, Mrs. John had not. John Henry had intended to take her, but there had been so many other things to occupy the time. At the friend's suggestion to see it that afternoon Mrs. John meekly complied and ended by buying two tickets instead of one. When they came out, it was raining, and the friend immediately ordered a carriage to take her to the station. There was nothing for it but Mrs. John should drive to the station with her, and then she must needs drive home and pay the bill as she alighted at her own door.

When John Henry arrived that night, his wife was in bed in a high fever and suffering from a severe headache. The next day when she was able to hobble about she got out the little blue notebook and, with tears blistering the smooth white pages, vainly tried to make a balance. It was impossible to put the whole amount of yesterday's expenditures into the "sundries" column, and tell John Henry about it she never would in the world. That evening was the one for the monthly reckoning, but before 6 o'clock, through worrying, figuring and planning, Mrs. John had worked herself almost into hysteria. After dinner John Henry smoked his cigar, but contrary to custom said nothing about the account books. His wife looked at him wonderingly from time to time, but he seemed utterly unconscious. After awhile she broke the silence.

"John, dear," she said, with tears in her voice, "I couldn't make my book balance this month, though I've worked over it all the afternoon."

John Henry muttered an exclamation under his breath which might have sounded to the office boy something like "Thank the Lord!" then turned and looked at her.

"And is it that which has worked you into such a fever and given you these headaches?" said he. "To tell the truth," he continued, "I couldn't make mine come out right either, but it didn't worry me to that extent. In the long run I don't know that it does us any good to be forever haggling over the comparative values of an Irish stew and a porterhouse steak or discussing the amount of enjoyment and benefit of a regular theater ticket as compared with the 10, 20, 30. What do you say to dropping the thing altogether?"

Mrs. John's face grew clearer and her eyes brighter than they had for thirty-six hours. She went over to John Henry and put her arms around his neck.

"Anything you say is right," she whispered. "You're a darling old boy, and I'm so glad I married you."

AMUSEMENTS.

The Bowery Burlesquers is the recognized leader of all burlesque and vaudeville organizations. They have several novel vaudeville features. The opening burlesque is on the Pan-American exposition, an all star olio of eight big acts and a closing burlesque or caricature of east side New York and the Bowery, entitled "Slumming." The name of the burlesque tells you what to expect. All the characters and parts in both the opening and closing burlesques are in charge of performers of ability whose success does not depend on chance but whose reputations are built on solid merit. At the head of a brilliant olio is Yutakamee, the beautiful Indian princess. She has a magnificent and beautifully trained voice and is unquestionably the lyric Juno of the vaudeville stage. Gilbert and Goldie, both deans of comedy, the Taylor trio of national reputation, Henshaw and Franciola in a comedy sister act. These young ladies are not sisters by nature, but in ability and good looks, yes. They are bright, pretty and incomparably humorous. Neva Aymer always wins approval. Hall and Herbert, singers and performers of great merit, the Nacirema twin midgets, two interesting mites that have created a furore in vaudeville. Minnie Gilbert, a charming serio-comic, the Robinson sisters, who have sung and danced themselves into immediate favor in every theatre where the Bowery Burlesquers have shown. The scenery, costuming, music and songs of this company are rich and catchy. Auditorium tonight. Curtain rises at 8 o'clock sharp.

Of late years theatre goers have demanded a spectacle as a portion of the theatrical entertainment provided for them, and Chas. H. Yale and Sidney R. Ellis, the producers of the "Evil Eye" and many other great spectacular productions, have been wise in their day and generation for the supplying of such a magnificent spectacle as that which will be presented at the Auditorium on Wednesday and Thursday night, Sept. 18 and 19. Although it is two years since the play was first presented under the most favorable auspices in New York in which city it had a run extending over many months, the production is still in the zenith of its glory and this year Messrs. Yale and Ellis have added to it many important features. They have drawn upon the ranks of both grand and comic opera performers for the soloists of the company and the cast of "The Evil Eye" this year includes such well known artists as the Brothers Kernard, Mayme Mayo, Chas. A. Loder, Josephine Baird, Geo. W. Kerr and others. Auditorium two nights beginning Sept. 18.

Klaw & Erlanger's production of "Ben Hur" is playing to enormous receipts at the Illinois theatre in Chicago, where it will continue in several runs. It will be presented in several other large cities before the end of the season. Marc Klaw, of Klaw and Erlanger, returned from England on Saturday, the 7th inst. He was in London five weeks in connection with preparations for the Drury Lane production of "Ben Hur" to be made in March next. Negotiations are now pending for productions of Ben Hur in Paris, Berlin and St. Petersburg. All foreign presentations of this drama will be made under the direction and control of Klaw and Erlanger.

Andrew Mack, in "Tom Moore," has become a Broadway favorite and is drawing capacity audiences to the Herald square theatre. The first Irish star to play on Broadway in years and the first since upper Broadway became the theatrical center, his success is very flattering, both to him and his managers, Rich and Harris. Mr. Mack will remain at the Herald square theatre for several weeks before he begins his tour of the principal cities.

NEWARK WOMAN

Saw Czolgosz on the Buffalo Exposition Ground Day Before the Shooting.

A Newark lady who attended the Pan American exposition last Thursday, the day before the attempted assassination of President McKinley, is certain that she saw Czolgosz on that day and is confident that he would have shot McKinley that day had an opportunity presented itself.

Her attention was attracted to a man pacing nervously up and down near the triumphal arch, and she noted his appearance particularly and his strange actions, remarking to her son "That man means no good."

Later he came up on the steps where she was sitting, took out a newspaper, and folding it, walked away. His every action denoted that he was ill at ease.

On that day the President inspected the buildings at the exposition, which had been previously cleared, and no one outside of the presidential party was allowed in them. It is probable that the attempt would have been made on that day, but for this precaution.

This lady, upon seeing the photograph of the assassin published in the Advocate, immediately recognized it as the likeness of the man who acted so strangely on Thursday.

The foregoing statement was given to the Advocate yesterday by the woman referred to, only on condition that her name be withheld. The report is from a wholly trustworthy source but the lady stated that she did not care for the notoriety the publication of her name would bring to her.

TOLD IN NEWARK.

It's the Evidence of Newark People Published in Newark Papers That Has Made Such a Reputation for Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills.

Standing clear and distinct, marking the difference, the superior merit, the adaptability to present day ailments is the volume of local testimony for Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. It's so different to the ordinary remedies referring to cures made at distant points, which it is hard to verify. There is a reason for Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills commanding more evidence wherever they are known. It is their wonderful influence in bringing up the standard of Nerve Force. Mrs. L. Devine, of No. 152 Locust street, Newark, Ohio, says: "I was greatly troubled with nervousness, could not sleep and was generally run down. I was advised to take Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills and got a box at Bricker's City Drug Store and found them an excellent medicine and I can recommend them to others as safe and sure."

TIDDLEY WINKS

"I am out of patience with those two," said Emily.

"Why so?"

"Last night when that glorious moon was on the river they sat indoors playing tiddley winks."

"A sad tale of wasted opportunities," said I. "But what do you propose to do?"

Emily leaned toward me and in a low, dramatic whisper unfolded her idea.

"Alone in the haunted chamber—she clings to him—she kisses and soothes her—in that moment their eyes are opened to their love—she sees and as is—"

"Heaven forbid," I murmured.

"A common danger lures their souls together, and—well—they get married, you know."

"Yes," I replied. Emily's rhetoric had apparently given out. "So few escape that. But still I don't quite understand."

"You know the ghost at Manley abbey, where we are going tomorrow?"

"It's never even left a card."

"There's a haunted room, and I shall lock them up in it. When they come out, they'll be engaged," said Emily, nodding gravely to express a wisdom beyond her years, which are few in number.

"But what is the nature of the ghostly manifestations?" I inquired.

"You can hear a chain rattle and a low wail."

I was a little skeptical.

"Somebody who was mad was chained up by some one else and got loose and killed some one."

"And only a wail and a rattle to commemorate all that?"

"Oh, people have seen things. I shall work the story up before lunch tomorrow."

Just then a cry of victory and a wave of the conquering mallet proclaimed the end of the game, and the combatants approached us.

"You two look awfully solemn," remarked Miss Dolly. "Is it a game of plot?"

I am still able to blush, but Emily is utterly brazen.

"The back fits horribly," she explained sadly.

"Poor dear! Never mind. Come with us. I'm going to give Harry his revenge at tiddley winks."

"She thinks she can beat me, you know. I was a little bit off color last night," said Harry.

"The superiority of the sex must be maintained," I remarked.

"Toof!" ejaculated Dolly scornfully. "You don't believe in it?" I asked.

"Of course not. I can give Harry 'fifteen' at tennis."

"But in the battle of life the man is the natural protector."

"Please, your reverence, it isn't Sunday," interrupted Dolly, with a little courtesy. "Come along, both of you."

"You would take me from grave consideration of the battle of life?"

"To play tiddley winks!" cried Dolly. "Rather! Come along."

I went.

Next day we were to drive over to Manley abbey after lunch and return late in the evening. Lady Emily had arranged for a moon.

During the meal my sister tried to harrow the young souls of the lovers with gossamer stories of specters, especially the wailing shade attached to the abbey. I noticed, however, that their appetites were unimpaired. In the brilliant sunshine of a July day it is difficult to harrow.

About 10 o'clock that evening, when the moon had accomplished its task of modeling the landscape in ebony and silver (putting it into half mourning, said Emily), I was discussing the dearth of agricultural labor with my host, when my sister approached and asked leave to take me indoors.

"Miss Emily!" inquired my host (who knows my sister).

"Business," replied Emily gravely and led me away.

"They have been in half an hour," she whispered as we crossed the lawn. "They should be done by now," I agreed.

The haunted room was situated in a wing of the house not used by the present owner, and Emily and I were often compelled to grope our way along in darkness.

"They were wild to see the room, so I took them there. Then I slipped out and locked the door. But it was awful coming back alone," said Emily.

I made no reply. My imagination was busy with the picture of the madman stalling along these silent corridors toward his victim. Emily clung tightly to my arm. Once she stopped, with a cry of fright, as a piece of furniture in one of the half dismantled rooms appeared like a crouching figure.

"I thought—it moved," she whispered. "Hurry, Johnny!"

At the door of the haunted room we stopped and listened. For a moment there was silence. Then from within came a snappish check and rattle.

"What's that, Johnny?" gasped Emily. "Oh, what have I done?"

I took the key from her and opened the door as again the weird sound rang out.

The shutters had been opened, and the brilliant moonlight streamed into the room. Ratched in the silver light were the two lovers—

Playing tiddley winks!—King.

HER QUALMS OF CONSCIENCE.

"Ricketts & Eastwood wired to me as soon as the decree nisi was made absolute. I left by the first steamer, landed at Plymouth yesterday, and here I am!"

There was an appreciable pause; then she said softly:

"Ah-h! I have been here all the time."

"What do you say to a sea voyage? Wouldn't it bring back your roses in double quick time?"

"A sea voyage?" she echoed vaguely. "I don't think I quite—"

"Look here!" he said awkwardly, but persuasively. "I've settled it all, subject to your approval. When we're married—eh? Now I want you to tell me when we can start."

"When we can?"

"Start. You understand? How soon will you join me in town and—go to church with me?"

They halted in their walk, and he took possession of her hands.

"Come," he said. "There's no possible reason for delay. We have waited long. Let us lose no more time."

She released her hands gently, but determinedly.

"My dear," she said, "I have something to tell you."

"Well?" he questioned, with a distinct suggestion of impatience.

"All this time, and indeed it has seemed very, very long. I have had nothing to do but think. The first thing I realized was that I was free—free to love you as much as I could."

She spoke deliberately, as was her habit, and very low, with her hands tightly clasped.

"Dearest," he assured her, "you are like all women!"

"Oh, no! Some of them are good. I have been weak and wicked. Perhaps I was tired too far. I used to say so in the days when I made excuses for myself."

"It's over and done with," said the man doggedly. "Why rake it up again?"

"Yes, I felt the uselessness of doing so, and I turned my thoughts to the future."

"Oh, sweetheart!"

"There I saw my salvation."

"Of course."

"But not in the way you mean."

"In what way?"

"I should not have allowed you to come back," she said wistfully. "Will you forgive me?"

"You speak in riddles."

"I must send you away," she said, meeting his gaze for the first time and without flinching.

He burst into a laugh of genuine amusement.

"Don't make it harder for me than it is already," she said, her lip quivering irresistibly. "I am in earnest indeed. For how can I allow myself to marry you—a creature of no account now, whose name has been banded about as a common thing, and deservedly? Oh, one can't pretend to the contrary."

"What's all this?" he asked, his mouth twisted into the semblance of a smile under his short, dark mustache.

"You must admit that all I say is true. I am not a fit woman to become a wife again."

"You mean," he said, "that you don't care for me any longer?"

In the night, which had at last fallen, the outline of his face looked sickly; his voice shook.

"Oh," she said, "you know that isn't so! But I feel I can't, I mustn't marry you. I have fallen too low. Still, I have only injured myself, for he is well rid of me. I needn't injure any one else."

"I would very much like to know," he said grimly, "if you ever cared for me?"

"It was my excuse, wasn't it?"

"And you wish me to leave?"

She put up her hands to her face.

"Have you thought it carefully over?" he went on in a steady, matter of fact voice. "You staked and lost everything for my sake, you said, and it has cost me something too. Not that I reproach you, for, by heaven, I do love you!"

"You will soon get over that, almost as soon as if I married you, and then you will see that I was right and perhaps be grateful to me."

"Is that all?"

"Yes."

"You are quite decided?"

"Quite."

"I had better say goodbye at once."

"Goodbye."

"We are not likely to meet again in a hurry, are we?"

"No," admitted the woman.

She held out her hands as if by possession of them.

"Your cheeks are wet," he said.

"Poor pale little face! Poor lonely little woman! Here," He produced a voluminous silk bandanna, with which he wiped away her tears. "There."

He drew her head down upon his shoulder and clasped her to him as gently as if she had been a child.

"What sort of a blackguard did you fancy I was? Do you think I will ever let you go?"

"Oh!" she breathed just before her lips met his. "Just for one moment I feared you were going to take me at my word."

GRASPED A LIVE WIRE

Child Would Have Been Killed Had Not Clem Coffman Hurried Into the Electric Railroad Power House and Had Power Turned Off—Boy Was Badly Burned.

Wednesday afternoon about five o'clock several boys were engaged in flying kites in the vicinity of the power house of the Newark and Granville Electric railway, at the corner of Church and Eleventh streets, when a kite flown by George Young, the nine-year-old son of "Brigham" Young, who works in the Everett glass factory, became entangled in a large elm tree. George climbed into the tree up near the top to release his kite, and accidentally took hold of a live wire belonging to the Electric railway, which was running through the tree. The wire was full of electricity, and when the unfortunate boy caught hold of the wire he was unable to let go. He screamed and wrestled about in the tree, suffering great pain from his hands, which were badly burned by the electric wire. Mr. Clem Coffman, who lives in the vicinity, saw the boy's peril, and at once divined the cause. He ran over to the power house and shouted to the engineer to turn off the power at once. The engineer did so immediately, and the boy came down from the tree, both his hands being badly lacerated and burned. Undoubtedly the prompt action of Mr. Coffman saved the boy's life, as with little longer delay he would either have been shocked to death by electricity or killed by falling to the ground.

FALL TERM

Of Denison University Opens With a Good Attendance—A Reception to Dr. E. W. Hunt.

Granville, O., Sept. 12.—Denison University opened this morning with a large number of students present, and others arrived during the day. There are many new faces.

The chapel exercises were very interesting and were conducted by the president, Dr. E. W. Hunt.

The attendance at Denison will be as large this year if not larger, than it was last.

A reception is to be given in the Baptist church tonight at 8 o'clock in honor of President Hunt, Hon. Chas. T. Lewis of Toledo, was expected to be one of the principal speakers of the evening, but the following from this morning's Ohio State Journal shows that Mr. Lewis is sick at Columbus:

"Hon. Charles T. Lewis, chief counsel for the Toledo and Ohio Central railroad, is quite ill at the Neil house. Mr. Lewis was in New York attending the annual meeting of the company, and on his way home was taken sick and forced to stop off here. The physician in charge said he did not think the illness would prove to be a serious one."

As no word has been received from Mr. Lewis up to noon today, it is probable that he will be well enough to be present this evening.

D. C. Brown of Dr. Knapp's office, went down to Zanesville on business today.

HERR MOST

Says There is no Occasion for All the Excitement—Anarchist Interviewed in New York.

New York, Sept. 12.—John Most, the Anarchist, or, as he prefers just now to be called, the Socialist, shook his head sadly when approached.

"It is no use," said he in his broken English. "I am sick answering questions about this business. They say I am in hiding. Good, now I am going to hide really to get away from people who want to know things. Just now I was deciding where to go."

"Yes," said he, "Emma is arrested. What of it, except that it was foolish to lock her up. What if she saw Czolgosz once—so did McKinley. Any one may meet an excitable young man who did something very foolish."

"The papers have made all the excitement. Are the people excited? Do the people care? No. Except maybe in the Fifth avenue clubs, no one cares. I ask you, when the Emperor of Russia was killed, was there all this paper talk?"

"Certainly not. Here a man is shot and the newspapers go crazy. No one in Germany cried 'Down with the Anarchists.'"

"Then, too, the papers make such crimes increase. They all print a man's picture, like Czolgosz, and it is an incentive to some poor fellow to get notoriety. Yes, the papers make a lot of it, and they are responsible."

"What is there to talk about?" he repeated. "It is not the first time rulers have been laid low. It is very common. Besides, in this instance Roosevelt was the only one to gain. Now if Roosevelt—"

Here he stopped and considered.

"Now," he said finally, "I suppose they'll put up McKinley, of course, for a third term—for martyrdom."

"Of course that's what it's for—all this excitement."

ABOUT THE TOWN

SALE—E. W. Crayton has just sold the Milo Francis property to Charles Dean, the south side restaurateur.

BAND CONCERT—The Pickering Band will give an open air concert on the public square tomorrow night.

HEAVY RAIN—The heavy rain of Wednesday night caused a number of cisterns and foundations, in course of construction, to cave in, but no serious damage has been reported.

SANDUSKY EXCURSION—About one hundred and fifty members of Cedar Camp of the local Modern Woodman of America, together with a number of friends, went to Sandusky and the lakes this morning on a special excursion under the auspices of Cedar Camp.

NEW OFFICER—Sergeant John O'Dowd who has been in charge of the recruiting station here, left this afternoon for Portland, Oregon. Sergeant McKinney of Columbus, will take his place.

BIRD RETURNED—Sam Bell is happy again. It will be remembered that Mr. Bell purchased a couple of fine canary birds in Columbus one day last week, and that one of them escaped shortly after his return home.

The fact of the bird's escape was published in the Advocate, which notice was read by a little daughter of Mr. Phil Baker, who returned the bird to Mr. Bell. She had caught it and taken it to the home of her grandfather, Mr. Valentine Baker, where he had placed it in a cage and kindly cared for it.

SURGEONS

Who Are Attending the President Are Leaders in the Profession—Cortelyou's Prompt Action.

President Garfield had no faith in his recovery. He believed from the first that his wound was fatal, but President McKinley has taken a hopeful view from the present time. It is the opinion of surgeons generally that the President will owe his life in a large measure to the promptness and skill with which the operation on the wound in the stomach was performed. There has been no criticism of the course his physicians pursued, and attention is called to the fortunate fact that he was attended promptly by some of the most eminent surgeons in the country.

Dr. Matthew D. Mann, who performed the delicate operation in the beginning, caring for the bullet holes in the stomach, so skillfully that no unfavorable symptoms have yet developed, leading to the belief that none will, is a professor in the University of Buffalo, and an author of wide reputation on the subject of abdominal surgery.

Dr. Roswell Parke, who is the chief surgeon in charge, although he could not be reached in time to preside at the operation, is one of the most eminent surgeons in America. He is president of the American Medical Association, chief surgeon of the Buffalo general hospital, professor in the university of Buffalo, and an author of a standard work on surgery.

Dr. Pressley M. Rixey, the President's private physician, is a medical inspector of the navy. Dr. Hermann Myer is a distinguished specialist in appendicitis and an author on the subject. He is a surgeon of the German hospital at Buffalo. Dr. John Parmenter is professor of anatomy in the university of Buffalo and an operator of wide reputation. Dr. Eugene Washin is surgeon of the Marine hospital at Buffalo, and was one of the experts detailed to investigate yellow fever in Cuba.

Dr. Charles McBurney, the chief consulting surgeon, is widely known to the profession throughout the country as a distinguished authority on surgery. For many years he was attending surgeon at Roosevelt hospital in New York, and is consulting surgeon at St. Luke's and the Presbyterian hospitals. He is a distinguished member of the American Medical Association, the Paris Surgical society, Academy of Medicine, Pathological society, Surgical society and Roman Medical society.

Great credit is also due to the Secretary, George B. Corfeyou, who is in charge of the President's affairs, and who promptly acted when the assassin's pistol was fired.

THE PRESIDENT

dent to shake the faith the attending physicians and surgeons have expressed that he will ultimately recover. The danger from two sources is pronounced practically over. The holes in the stomach proper, caused by the perforation of the bullet, are considered healed by Dr. McBurney and his associates, and the eminent surgeon pointed to the fact that the beef juice fed to the patient was readily digested as proof of this. Sufficient time has also elapsed to warrant the doctors in asserting that the danger of inflammation where the bullet lodged has disappeared. It is believed that the ball has now become encysted in the muscles of the back, and unless its location should prove troublesome there will never be any necessity for removing it. The attention of the physicians is now, therefore, mainly directed to the care and treatment of the wound caused by the incision made in the abdomen above the navel, where the operation was performed. This wound is progressing satisfactorily.

The president now breathes deeply and normally, and the addition of the respiration record to the bulletin was considered valuable. The president's pulse was slightly accelerated, but the change was not deemed material, and his temperature remained practically stationary at 100.2. The evidences of improvement were the president's keen relish of the beef juice given him during the night, and the increase of his allowance from one to three teaspoonsful, and also the fact that the wound is becoming More Healthy. Dr. McBurney explained that the slight irritation found still remaining should pass away with the next 24 hours.

The president continues in excellent spirits, but he confessed to one of the attendants that he was getting lonesome. He requested that he be placed in another bed. A depression had formed in the mattress on which he has lain since he was taken to the Milburn house and had caused some discomfort. Another bed was provided and he was carefully moved from one to the other without difficulty. He has asked several times if there was any news which he should know, but inquiries, especially about public matters, are discouraged and the rigid inhibition against the admission of any one except his wife and faithful secretary has not been relaxed.

It is now virtually decided that no attempt will be made to remove the president to Washington until he has completely recovered, and in a general way it can be said that there is no likelihood that this will be until October. Mrs. McKinley still displays the same fortitude she has shown since the tragedy occurred. The midnight consultation of the physicians furnished, in some respects, the most Reassuring News which has yet come from the sick-room. A microscopic count of the blood had been made by Dr. Wassdin. At the conference the result was submitted and found to be perfectly satisfactory. There had been no abnormal increase of white corpuscles such as would have existed had blood poisoning set in, and the doctors had the satisfaction of announcing officially that the count of the blood corroborated the clinical evidence of the absence of any blood poisoning. The president was bathed and given nourishment while all the doctors were present, and afterward was placed in his new bed.

The five members of the cabinet who are here talked over pending public questions for over an hour. The South American situation was gone over and there was an exchange of opinion regarding the legal phases of the case against the assassin. It can be stated again in the most positive manner that there is no conflict of authority between the state and federal authorities for the possession of the prisoner.

Senator Wellington Expelled. Baltimore, Sept. 12.—At a meeting of the board of governors of the Union League of Maryland resolutions were adopted expelling Senator George L. Wellington from membership in the organization. The resolutions, after referring to the attempted assassination of President McKinley by Czolgosz, state that "the people of Maryland have learned with shame and loathing that George L. Wellington, a representative of this state in the senate of the United States, has committed the act of this traitor to his country and enemy of mankind, by repeated and public expressions of indifference to the act or its results."

Washington to Demonstrate. Washington, Sept. 12.—The Washington board of trade sent a letter to the district commissioners proposing that when President McKinley is removed here his arrival be marked by a popular demonstration designed to exceed anything of the kind ever witnessed here. The project contemplates the assembling of as many uniformed organizations and individual citizens as can be gotten together to be at the depot on the president's arrival and to escort the party to the White House, the entire procession, uniformed and not uniformed, to pass by the White House.

He Warned McKinley. Youngstown, O., Sept. 12.—John Stoneman, an employee of the Youngstown Electric Light Company, believes the plot to assassinate McKinley was hatched in this city, and says that just before the president left Washington for Clinton to spend the summer he heard a party of strangers talking and one of them said, "McKinley has not long to live." Stoneman says he sent a letter to President McKinley warning him to be careful and received a letter from Secretary Cortelyou thanking him for the information.

DEATH

OF MR. FORRY, A FORMER NEWARK MAN AT MT. VERNON.

Passed Away After a Long Illness.
Sketch of His Life—Relatives Living Here.

(Mt. Vernon Banner.)

Mr. J. W. Forry, one of the best known farmers in Knox county, died at his home in this city Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock, after an illness of several months. The following is a sketch of his life:

Jacob Wilson Forry was born at Newark, Ohio, December 18, 1837, and died September 10, 1901. He was the oldest of six children, three of whom survive him, Mrs. Mary Farnsworth, of Granville, Mrs. T. M. Ball, of Newark, and Zelora Forry, who resides on the old homestead. The deceased are Mrs. Judge Reese and Orren Forry of Newark.

December 10, 1862, he was married to Miss Melinda Letts. In the following spring he went west and engaged in the stock business for a year. Returning he bought the farm east of Hunt, where he resided for 35 years, removing to Mt. Vernon in the fall of 1899. About two years ago he was stricken with la grippe, followed by pneumonia, from the effects of which he never fully recovered.

He was the father of five children, two dying in infancy. A wife, two sons and one daughter, Calvin W., Frank L., and Ione survive to mourn their loss. Mr. Forry was well known throughout the county, being one of Knox county's successful farmers. He was highly respected and loved by all who knew him.

The funeral will be on Thursday at 3 p. m., at the residence, 108 East Vine street.

JEWISH

Holiday Season Begins on Friday Evening—New Year's Services—Explanation of the Calendar.

The Jewish holiday season will begin on Friday evening, when the introductory New Year's services will take place in every Jewish house of worship. The Jewish year begins on the first day of the month Tisri. The year is composed of twelve lunar months, and as the beginning of these months cannot be fixed to any certain day of the Julian calendar, there can be no Julian date for the Jewish new year. The festival fell on September 24 last year.

A month, according to the Jewish calendar, comprises the period of one revolution of the moon around the earth. This yields 354 days and eight hours for the twelve months, or about eleven days less than the solar year of 365 days. To avoid the error which would arise and the confusion of dates a whole month is added to certain years. Thus, within a cycle of nineteen years, the third, sixth, eighth, eleventh, fourteenth, seventeenth and nineteenth have thirteen months each and are leap years. In order to ascertain whether a year has twelve or thirteen months, the number of the year is divided by 19. If there is no remainder or if the remainder is 3, 6, 8, 11, 14, 17 or 19, the year is leap year. The year which will begin on Friday evening will be 5662. By dividing 5662 by 19 there would be no remainder, which shows that the new year will be leap year, having thirteen months.

In the early days of Judaism, before there were any calendars, the coming of the new moon was determined by observation, and then it was proclaimed throughout the land by means of fires on the tops of the mountains. In places where these signals could not be seen, messengers brought the news that the new moon had been seen and that a new month had begun. But the messengers were sometimes delayed and the people sometimes did not say the proper prayers until the moon was a day old. In order to be on the safe side and to guard against mishaps, the people living outside of Palestine observed all the feast days twice. They celebrated every holiday except the day of atonement for two days. This custom became so firmly rooted that even now, in the largest cities of the world, where there can be no doubt as to the correctness of the dates, the orthodox Jews still celebrate the New Year's feast, which will end the "second day," and for that reason on Saturday at sunset in all reformed Jewish houses of worship, will be continued another day by the orthodox Jews.

Coming Excursion.

In spite of the rapidly approaching end of the season Idlewild is to enjoy yet another big excursion. On Friday morning, the 13th, at 9 o'clock, about fourteen hundred people from Newcomersown are expected to disembark at Williams street in the West End. The Idlewild band will be in waiting to escort the "Newcomers" to the park, where for one solid day they will partake of those outdoor pleasures which "Idlewild" offers so bountifully. The excursion is under the auspices of the Newcomersown band. This will be one of the last opportunities afforded this year for Newark citizens to go out and share the rare pleasure of Idlewild with some of our neighboring fellow-Buckeye townsmen. Let all who can avail themselves of the privilege. Our beautiful park will soon be gone for the winter, and the time will seem all too long before its gates are again open.

This power is not considered supernatural by scientists, but today we know there are certain persons who are born with an unusual amount of Vitality and science has demonstrated that this Vital principle is Life itself, and when possessed by one who has an excessive amount of it, can be transmitted to others who lack that element and thereby restore them to health.
